Tasks

The Short-Term Scientific Missions (STSMs) funded by the COST Action at Polimi-DAStU seeks a young researcher with an economic geography and regional studies background to fulfil the following tasks, together with the Cost members at Polimi: (i) to help develop an online-questionnaire for managers of the new working spaces (NWS) with a focus on the impact of the Covid and to understand the post-Covid situation and potentials of such spaces, with a focus on the peripheral and remote areas; (ii) to help structure a quantitative methodology for analysing the direct and indirect effects of NSW, building upon data gathered and elaborated within WG1 and WG2 and also the data collected via the questionnaire. She/ he will also explore whether and how NWS have promoted – with or without the help of public subsidies and planning measures: (a) regional competitiveness, (b) resilience and, accordingly, spatial regeneration of peripheral areas via, for instance, retaining knowledge workers and the creative class and social inclusion.
