

I am running for the faculty board, because I wish to be a clear female voice steering NMBU towards being a sustainable and inspiring university for the youth of tomorrow. As a university for environmental and life sciences, NMBU has a special responsibility to set the standard for sustainability and to facilitate for the growth of independent and critically thinking minds, whom at their time at (and after) NMBU are equipped with the tools to build the new and sustainable systems we so desperately need.

We are in an extremely critical situation, of which we need to act upon now (!) to steer the environmental and ecological crisis away from the worst case scenario.

NMBU claims a wish to be in the lead when it comes to sustainable politics and education, and I wish to enter the faculty board to move NMBU towards taking the hard but necessary decisions needed to turn the climate- and ecological crisis around.
